NEW URBANISM 101

9:00 am – 5:00 pm | Regency Ballroom AB

An in-depth primer on the history, principles, and concepts of New Urbanism. This day-long course provides an illustrated introduction to New Urbanism and a foundation in key concepts such as suburban retrofits, revitalization, and the challenges facing the new urbanist environment.

SPEAKERS:

Scott A. Brown, Senior Engineer, Pennoni Associates

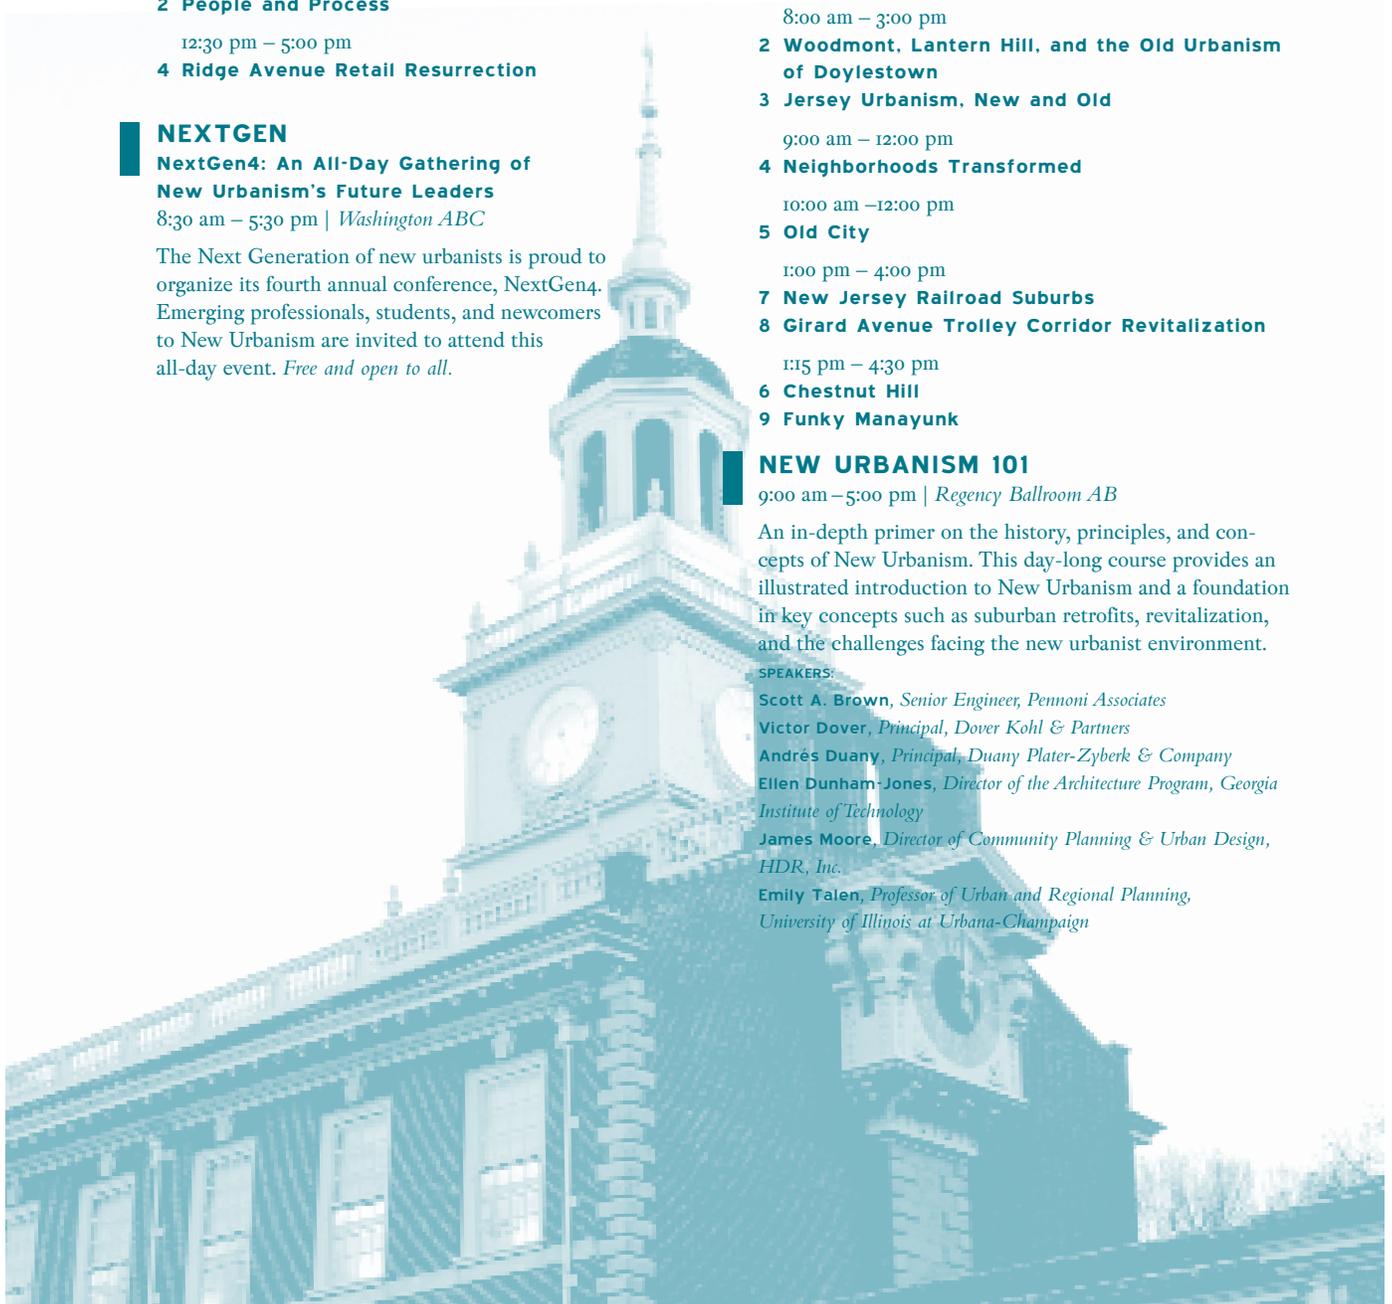

Victor Dover, Principal, Dover Kohl & Partners

Andrés Duany, Principal, Duany Plater-Zyberk & Company

Ellen Dunham-Jones, Director of the Architecture Program, Georgia Institute of Technology

James Moore, Director of Community Planning & Urban Design, HDR, Inc.

Emily Talen, Professor of Urban and Regional Planning, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign

THURSDAY *continuedLEED FOR NEIGHBORHOOD DEVELOPMENT WORKING SESSION9:00 am – 5:00 pm | Washington AB

CNU has partnered with the Natural Resources Defense Council and the U.S. Green Building Council to certify neighborhood development projects through the LEED for Neighborhood Development rating system. The pilot version of the certification program began in early 2007. In Philadelphia, several leading new urbanists who helped create the rating system will provide a general update about the program and will describe what they want to learn during the pilot phase. They will also offer presentations about the accessibility credit and emerging thresholds. Breakout sessions will seek input about the topics presented and why some projects did not apply to be a part of the pilot program. Free and open to all.

SPEAKERS:Victor Dover, *Principal, Dover Kohl & PartnersDoug Farr, *President and Founding Principal, Farr Associates Architecture & Urban DesignJennifer Henry, *LEED-ND Program Manager, U.S. Green Building CouncilDaniel Hernandez, *Principal, Topology, LLCJessica Cogan Millman, *Senior Advisor, District of Columbia Office of PlanningSusan Mudd, *Environmental Attorney, Board member, Congress for the New UrbanismEleanor Smith, *Director, Concrete ChangeLaura Watchman, *Principal, Watchman ConsultingNEW URBANISM 202sRequire registration and a separate fee.Morning Sessions | 9:00 am – 12:00 pm*A Implementing Form-Based CodesRegency Ballroom C*

More and more cities across the country are adopting form-based codes. The process of form-based code (including SmartCode) preparation is well-documented, but what happens after official adoption? Experienced form-based code practitioners will discuss the issues of completing a code, integrating it with the larger body of municipal regulations and, most importantly, administering it on a daily basis to achieve compatible infill development.

SPEAKERS:Chad Emerson, *Associate Professor of Law, Faulkner University Jones School of LawAlan Loomis, *Principal Urban Designer, City of GlendaleDavid Sargent, *Principal, HDR Town PlanningBill Spikowski, *Principal, Spikowski Planning AssociatesMichael Watkins, Architect and Town Planner, Duany Plater-Zyberk & CompanyB Putting Traffic in Its Place: Using the New CNU/ITE ManualCommonwealth B

Implementers of the ITE/CNU manual on urban thoroughfares must manage and put into perspective concerns about traffic volume. This workshop will present traditional transportation principles, highlighting the role of the network, and will look at the art of balancing capacity with placemaking. Case studies illustrate the methodology within which new transportation solutions have reframed conventional practice.

SPEAKERS:Allen D. Biehler, *Secretary of Transportation, Commonwealth of PennsylvaniaEric Dumbaugh, *Assistant Professor of Landscape Architecture and Urban Planning, Texas A&M UniversityNorman Garrick, *Associate Professor of Civil and Environmental Engineering, University of ConnecticutWalter Kulash, P.E. *Senior Transportation Engineer, Glattig Jackson Kercher Anglin Lopez RinehartTroy Russ, *Principal, Glattig Jackson Kercher Anglin Lopez RinehartGary Toth, *Director, Division of Planning and Development, New Jersey Department of TransportationD TND Permitting Barriers and Strategies to Overcome Them*Commonwealth A*

Delays encountered while creating new urbanist TNDs can have significant negative repercussions on the project and surrounding community. Hear strategies used by developers and discover successful strategies for overcoming setbacks in the planning and approval process.

Join us for a new urbanist book signing where you can meet your favorite new urbanist writers. Several authors will be available to sign copies of their new books including Chad Emerson, Gloria Ohland, Anthony Flint, Eugenie Birch, Jonathan Barnett, Emily Talen, Phillip Bess, and others. Purchase your books at the bookstore and meet the authors in the exhibit hall.

THURSDAY *continuedNEW URBANISM 202sRequire registration and a separate fee.Afternoon Sessions | 2:00 pm – 5:00 pm*F Incorporating New Urbanism into Comprehensive PlansCommonwealth B*

This session will explore new urbanist comprehensive plans, which de-emphasize land use and instead focus on typology, character, and condition of place. Panelists will review the differences between new urbanist and conventional plans and identify powerful ways to transform existing plans in ways that will lay the foundation for improving the quality of life and design character in communities.

SPEAKERS:

Richard Bernhardt, Executive Director, Metropolitan Planning Department Nashville-Davidson County

Gianni Longo, President, ACP Visioning & Planning

Alan Loomis, Principal Urban Designer, City of Glendale

Peter Park, Manager, Community Planning and Development, City of Denver

Matt Raimi, Principal, Raimi & Associates, Inc.

G Multiway Boulevards*Commonwealth A*

This session offers an in-depth primer on the design of multiway boulevards and the issues surrounding them. This course covers the appropriate use of multiway boulevards, the necessity of a holistic approach, concepts related to the through-going and the extended pedestrian realms, intersection design, traffic controls, appropriate adjacent land uses and building types, and detailed design issues.

SPEAKERS:

Allan B. Jacobs, Professor Emeritus of City & Regional Planning and Urban Design, University of California Berkeley College of Environmental Design

Elizabeth Macdonald, Assistant Professor of City & Regional Planning and Urban Design, University of California Berkeley College of Environmental Design

Yodan Rofé, Lecturer, J. Blaustein Institute for Desert Research University of the Negev

H Introduction to NCI Dynamic Planning: The Charrette in Context*Washington C*

This session delivers a complete overview of the NCI Dynamic Planning process, which aims to provide holistic solutions to the design and public involvement obstacles encountered in most conventional planning processes. Dynamic Planning is a comprehensive project management process that begins with the project vision and ends with the plan's implementation. It includes the use of collaborative design and public involvement tools, such as charrettes, visioning, and workshops.

SPEAKERS:

Stephen Coyle, Regional Planning Advisor, HDR Engineering

William Lennertz, Executive Director, National Charrette Institute

I Details of New Urbanism: Curb to Cupola Round 2Congress B*

The quality of new urbanist developments can be found in the details. In this sequel to a popular CNU XIV seminar, learn from the experts about the little things that make a big difference in creating great places. This session will focus on vital components from street trees, signage, and alley details to porches, window trim, and frieze boards.

*Co-sponsored by the National Town Builders Association

SPEAKERS:

Louis Marquet, Executive Vice President, LeylandAlliance LLC

Steve Maun, President, LeylandAlliance LLC

Steve Mouzon, Principal, The New Urban Guild

NEW INITIATIVES FORUM2:00 pm–5:00 pm | Congress A

Would you like to start a new initiative? Hash out a thorny new urbanist issue with colleagues? Join CNU initiative leaders in collaborative discussions about future projects. Accessibility and affordability were just two of the many initiatives that emerged from this session in past Congresses. This strategy session allows participants to self-organize productive workshops around topics they want to work on between Congresses. Results from the session will be posted at the Congress for member review and will inform ongoing and new CNU initiatives.

Free and open to all.

EXHIBIT RECEPTION5:00 pm–6:30 pm | Millennium Hall

Come meet our CNU XV exhibitors and network with other new urbanists. Light hors d'oeuvres will be served. Cash bar.

THURSDAY *continuedOPENING NIGHT RECEPTION AND PLENARY

Pennsylvania Convention Center, Ballroom B, Across Market Street from the Loews Hotel

Opening Reception

7:30 pm – 8:00 pm

Opening Session

8:00 pm – Onward

Celebrate the opening of the 15th annual Congress with John Norquist, President and CEO of CNU, and Hank Dittmar, CNU Board Chair and Chief Executive of the Prince's Foundation for the Built Environment. They will welcome you to Philadelphia and open the Congress. John Norquist will introduce Elinor Bacon, urban policy expert and assistant HUD secretary in the Clinton administration, who will share thoughts on the legacy of her father, Edmund Bacon, who served as Executive Director of the Philadelphia City Planning Commission from 1949 to 1970.

The opening plenary will feature a special presentation of the Driehaus Form-Based Codes Award sponsored by the Form-Based Codes Institute. As first jury chair, Elizabeth Plater-Zyberk will present the inaugural awards for achievement in the writing and implementation of form-based codes.

CNU co-founder Elizabeth Plater-Zyberk will introduce legendary Philadelphia author Witold Rybczynski, who gives the opening plenary lecture. For his new book, Last Harvest, Rybczynski committed four years to following the design, construction, and marketing of a neotraditional residential community in exurban Chester County, Pennsylvania—a development process lengthened by zoning changes, community resistance and several unforeseen problems. Rybczynski will discuss what he sees as lessons learned from this experience: traditional town planners need to look at varied ways of accommodating cars on small lots, while also studying how people do—and don't—want to live. Since concepts such as neighborhood and community can be difficult to market, developers and builders should bear in mind that their customers are buying a home, not an ideology. Equally at home as a high-profile architecture writer and critic and as a real estate professor, Rybczynski is also the author of City Life and Home, and recently received the Vincent Scully prize from the National Building Museum.

SPEAKERS:

Hank Dittmar, Chief Executive, The Prince's Foundation for the Built Environment

John Norquist, President and CEO, Congress for the New Urbanism

Elinor R. Bacon, President, E.R. Bacon Development LLC

Elizabeth Plater-Zyberk, Principal, Duany Plater-Zyberk & Company

CONCURRENT SESSIONS

9:15 am – 10:30 am

Access, Urbanism, and the Future of Cities*Regency Ballroom ABC*

Despite the existence of the ADA and Federal Fair Housing Act, many who need it continue to encounter a lack of accessibility. Many new urbanists fear the loss of traditional building types while accessibility advocates believe they can create accessibility without destroying urban character. What is wrong with the process and what are the solutions? This session will review ways to adjust to legislative and demographic realities while ensuring diversity and social justice in new urbanist communities.

SPEAKERS:

John Anderson, Vice President, Planning and Design, New Urban Builders, Inc.

Andrés Duany, Principal, Duany Plater-Zyberk & Company

Laura Hall, Principal, Fisher & Hall Urban Design

Edward Steinfeld, Professor of Architecture and Director, Center for Inclusive Design and Environmental Access, School for Architecture and Planning, SUNY-Buffalo

Mississippi Planning: The Gulf's Response to New Urbanist Codes, Plans, and Housing*Congress ABC*

Communities of the hurricane-ravaged Gulf Coast, suddenly forced to address significant community building problems, may end up leading the nation in cutting-edge rebuilding ideas. New urbanist involvement, from the Mississippi Renewal Forum to newly selected teams for refining codes and comprehensive plans, has ignited passionate discussion and inevitable contention. Hear from a panel of post-Katrina Mississippi's most effective civic leaders and rabble-rousers about how New Urbanism has been received, or challenged, over the past year and a half.

MODERATOR:

Ann Daigle, Principal, New Urban Image

SPEAKERS:

Lolly Barnes, Vice President, White House Properties

Xavier Bishop, Mayor, Moss Point

Jeff Bounds, Planning Consultant, Mississippi Renewal Coalition

Connie Moran, Mayor, City of Ocean Springs

Jim Schmitt, Pass Christian Mississippi Project

Leland Speed, Executive Director, Mississippi Development Authority

New Urbanism and Comprehensive Plans*Commonwealth AB*

Explore innovative applications of the Charter of the New Urbanism to comprehensive plans. This session will review how to de-emphasize land use and focus on typology, character, and condition of place. Using case studies from across the country, the panelists will highlight the application of the Charter to three different communities — an urbanized city, a city with outward growth pressure, and a rural county.

MODERATOR:

New Urbanism for All:Meeting the Affordability ChallengeCommonwealth CD*

A growing number of new urbanists seek to address the problem of increasing segregation and decreasing affordability. Learn how New Urbanism will meet the 21st century challenge of socially inclusive neighborhood development. Explore a historical perspective on the recurring problem of affordability in planned communities, as well as innovations that paint a brighter, more diverse future.

MODERATOR:

Spinning Straw into Gold: Redevelopment in New Jersey Downtowns*Washington A*

New Jersey's unique Redevelopment Statute dictates urban infill and severely limits greenfield development. Local builders, national developers, design professionals and financing institutions have joined to devise strategies that resolve the complexities of land assembly, environmental cleanup and profitability in historic urban centers. Similarly, local governments have discovered the benefit of public/private partnerships. This session illustrates how a meaningful regulatory tool and new urbanist design principles combine to produce profitable and timeless urban infill.

MODERATOR:

Shirleen Roberts, Central Area Legal Council, K Hovnanian Homes

Sean M. Scarborough, President, Scarborough Properties, Inc.

Ralph Zucker, President, Somerset Development

FRIDAY continuedVillage Green/Green Village: An Approach to Civic EcologyWashington B

The public realm of a town or city can be designed to enhance both the sociability and the environmental quality of a place. A series of case studies will illustrate the thesis that landscape is not cosmetic, but intrinsic to the form and health of a village, town, or city.

SPEAKERS:

Dennis Carmichael, Landscape Architect, EDAW, Alexandria, Virginia

Jody Leidolf, Manager, Planning and Sustainability, Newland Communities

David Yocca, Senior Partner and Director of Landscape, Architecture, and Planning, Conservation Design Forum

A Competitive Agenda for Pennsylvania*Commonwealth AB*

Pennsylvania is slowly transitioning from an industrial past to a knowledge economy, and the state's development patterns—slow growth, fast sprawl, struggling cities, and older suburbs—undermine its competitive future. Building on the Brookings Institution's work in Pennsylvania, this session will explore how the state can build on existing economic strengths, transform the urban physical landscape to create marketable sites primed for reinvestment, create neighborhoods for a broad range of incomes, and encourage regional governance and planning.

SPEAKER:

Bruce Katz, Vice President and Director, The Adeline M. and Alfred I. Johnson Chair in Urban and Metropolitan Policy, The Brookings Institution

INTRODUCED BY:

Barry Seymour, Executive Director, Delaware Valley Regional Planning Commission

Big City Zoning*Commonwealth CD*

Big cities across the nation are overhauling their zoning codes to encourage good development and design practices. This session will focus on the successful approaches used to obtain broad community and political support for a new zoning code. Panelists will describe their experiences as they worked to modernize the codes in Milwaukee, Denver, Chicago, Detroit, Pittsburgh, and Miami.

Mr. DOT Secretary. Tear Down this Wall*Congress ABC*

While the economic benefits of removing urban freeways are well documented, the transportation benefits are still debated. Questions about the impact on traffic can present an obstacle to revitalization. Experiences from San Francisco and Seoul, South Korea, show that traffic is effectively distributed within the street grid. This session will review how Trenton, New Jersey, was able to explain what happens with the traffic and dive deep into the current debate over what to do with the Alaskan Way Viaduct running between Seattle's downtown and Elliot Bay.

The Mythical Parking Shortage: Managing Supply and Demand*Washington A*

Parking requirements are a principal difference between the New Urbanism and the old. Today, the strongest determinant of urban form is neither density, nor floor/area ratio, but parking spaces. How can we accommodate the automobile while still allowing for good urban form? From innovative on-street parking management to the removal of off-street requirements, this session will review effective strategies for balancing supply and demand with urbanism.

The Other Illness*Regency Ballroom ABC*

Our beloved planet has been diagnosed with a terminal illness—the carbon catastrophe. The tiresome thing about people with terminal diseases is that they can't think about anything else. Fortunately, perhaps, the world has a second potentially terminal illness—raging tribalism. By finding urban strategies and architectural language that address both diseases simultaneously we have the potential to be interesting instead of merely good, thereby reversing Mies van der Rohe's strangling aphorism.

Out ThereWashington A*

As affluence increases in developing countries like China and India, common sense within the development community seems to decrease—just as it did in the United States. Current trends reject time-honored patterns of urban fabric in favor of auto-dependent, energy-intensive enclaves for a fast-rising middle class. So far, the response from Western architects and planners has been to export the failed suburban paradigm. In this session, we'll hear from new urbanists fighting upstream against this unsustainable trend.

FRIDAY continuedPiloting Forward: LEED for Neighborhood DevelopmentCongress ABC

LEED for Neighborhood Development (LEED-ND) is a rating system designed by the CNU, USGBC and NRDC to encourage walkable, transit-oriented, and green neighborhood design. Pilot projects have now been chosen that meet entry thresholds. LEED-ND authors recognize that some projects meeting the intent remain unsubmitted due to one or more prerequisites. Join them as they review the rating system, prerequisites, and certification process and discuss the value of LEED-ND to developers, planners, and municipalities.

Form Based Codes: Significant Work in Progress*Commonwealth AB*

Form-Based Codes are being rapidly prepared and adopted across the U.S. in ever-increasing numbers. This panel will review transect-based coding efforts in several states, including infill along the damaged Gulf Coast. It will explore differences in practice, in SmartCode and other applications. Specific examples will be illustrated in Greenfield, Town Center, and University Campus contexts.

Green, Fair, and Fun: Local Living Economies*Commonwealth CD*

The Local Living Economy movement offers solutions to the dual challenges of climate change and peak oil. It envisions a decentralized global network of independent, locally owned businesses and farms that not only reduces transportation costs but also fosters meaningful relationships with customers, neighbors, and local habitat. Inspired by experiences to save and redevelop urban places and provide access to local food, this session will explore ways to build environmentally, socially, and economically sustainable communities.

SPEAKER:

Judy Wicks, Founder of the White Dog Café and Co-founder of the Business Alliance for Local Living Economies

INTRODUCED BY:

Sandy Wiggins, Chair, U.S. Green Building Council and Principal, Consilience LLC

FRIDAY continuedManaging Walkable UrbanityCongress ABC

The dramatic impact of business improvement districts (BIDs) over the last two decades has confirmed that urban design alone does not make for great urban spaces. Management is key. The success of BIDs has led them to expand beyond effective provisioning of what were once “municipal services” to public policy advocacy, economic development, and even school reform. This session will explore these trends and others, including management of new suburban town centers and for-profit BID models.

New Urbanism & The Old City*Regency Ballroom ABC*

Definite differences exist between the “Old Urbanism” and the New Urbanism, most clearly manifested in the work done within the existing historic city. Unlike prior attempts at creating a more competitive inner city by making it more suburban, the New Urbanism appropriates the managerial techniques of the suburban developers while rejecting their forms. This unique combination has proven markedly successful, although not without certain negative social consequences.

TOD in Distressed Communities*Washington A*

By 2030, demand for Transit-Oriented Development (TOD) is expected to double. However, rebuilding around transit stops in established yet distressed neighborhoods continues to face significant challenges. Meet these challenges with cutting-edge techniques for building mixed-income TOD in West Baltimore, Boston, Chicago, Miami, and the Twin Cities. Learn how distressed communities can capture the marketplace demand for TOD without losing their history and character.

FRIDAY EVENING PLENARY

5:30 pm – 7:00 pm | Pennsylvania Convention Center, Ballroom B, Across Market Street from the Locust Hotel

Sam Sherman, partner, New Urban Ventures, will introduce Hon. Edward G. Rendell, Governor, Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. Governor Rendell will speak about reinvesting in our urban centers, the importance of funding mass transit, and his initiatives at a statewide level to promote sustainable economic development.

Dan Solomon, CNU co-founder and Board member will introduce Jonathan Barnett, one of America’s most distinguished urban planners and code writers. Jonathan will receive the CNU Athena Medal for his contribution to the revival of urbanism and will then speak on “Smart Growth in a Changing World.” The Athena Medal recognizes the legacy of pioneers who laid the groundwork for New Urbanism.

Regionalism: The Third Layer of New Urbanism

Then Hank Dittmar, CNU Board Chair, will introduce acclaimed architect, planner, CNU co-founder, and author Peter Calthorpe. Calthorpe will share his vision for a fuller engagement of New Urbanism at the regional scale. The author of Pedestrian Pocket Book; The Regional City: Planning for the End of Sprawl; Sustainable Communities; and The Next American Metropolis: Ecology, Community, and the American Dream, Calthorpe received the prestigious Nichols Prize from the Urban Land Institute in 2006. Peter and his firm have developed regional plans for Salt Lake City, Dallas, Portland, Minneapolis-St. Paul, Austin, and Los Angeles as well as regions in Dubai and Japan.

The State of CNU

Join CNU Board Chair Hank Dittmar, President and CEO John Norquist, and other board members as they present an overview of CNU's 2007 strategic plan. This 18-month effort lays out a strategy for enabling and promoting the reform of the regulatory structure governing development and the practices of the building industry and related professions.

Address by Kjell Forshed

Following the presentation on CNU's future, CNU co-founder Stefanos Polyzoides will introduce architect Kjell Forshed. Forshed will present ideas for achieving excellence in urbanism. His appearance builds on an indelible moment in recent Congress history, when Stockholm city planner Aleksander Wolodarski received an emotional standing ovation at the 2005 Charter Awards ceremony for his work on the Sankt Erik infill neighborhood. Despite a bitter critical reception from modernist Swedish architects, the Stockholm development was recognized by jurors and Congress attendees as urbanism of the highest order. Responsible for much of the best architecture at Sankt Erik, Forshed is quietly earning a reputation as the leading traditional architect and urbanist in his country. Sharing observations from decades of experience humanizing developments in Sweden to jurying CNU's 2007 Charter Awards, Forshed will challenge and inspire us to reconnect with urbanism's timeless virtues.

Is Small the New Big?

New Trends in a Slowing Building Industry

Washington B

This panel looks at the national trend toward quality spaces, away from the McMansion to smaller, better-built homes, such as the Katrina Cottage. The demand for building smaller comes from homeowners who want comfortable places to live that are "right-sized." The panel will explore the topic of smaller houses from the perspective of design, development and marketing, while looking at the ties between many of the issues that are blaring on the evening news and in the pages of our newspapers: the sub-prime loan debacle, aging boomers, empty nesters, rise of single-adult households, affordable housing, climate change, energy concerns, lower housing starts and a slow economy.

SATURDAY continued

Smaller, smarter houses built in traditional communities are more sustainable, energy-efficient, and economic to build, all while meeting practical requirements. In an industry where selling square footage has become second nature, this panel looks at ways to offer better living and provides tools and case studies to help participants apply these principles.

Retail Along the Transect: Getting It Right in Urban Environments

Regency Ballroom ABC

This session will look at where retail fits along the Transect and offer lessons learned from a major retail/mixed-use developer. Discover techniques and strategies for developing urban mixed-use projects in a suburban market context, including anticipating and planning for changes in the market while maintaining a more urban outcome. Receive an update on the long-term trends affecting the retail industry and the implications for new urbanists. This session will bring fresh perspectives to a perennial challenge and showcase new models for viable town centers.

Press and New Urbanism Engaging Media: If We’re So Smart, Why Don’t Reporters and Editors Always Agree with Us?

Congress ABC

Over the last two years, New Urbanism has attracted more media coverage than at any time in its history; yet, many planners and architects complain that too many reporters ignore what we consider major stories. Moreover, when they do feature new urbanist projects and principles, many seem distracted by sensational angles and out-of-context anecdotes. What’s going on here? Are the messengers or the message to blame? It’s time for a graduate-level course in Media Matters, from the experts in editorial decision-making: the journalists themselves. Learn to speak the language of reporters and editors and to frame pitches that give you the best chance of getting the right kind of media attention.

The Detroit Sessions Part II: Detroit Developers and Their Projects*Commonwealth CD*

The American city most damaged in the post-war era may stand to gain the most in the 21st century. A panel of experienced Detroit developers will lay the foundation for a new wave of "Motor City" development. They will share their experiences working in the city, describing their projects, how they pencil out, and how they see Detroit rediscovering urbanism.

Despite a concerted attempt by certain factions to keep the new urbanists out of New Orleans, the wall eventually fell. Andrés Duany and Ray Gindroz give their perspectives on the slow, often agonizing rebuilding of the city Andrés deemed "not among the most haphazard, poorest, or misgoverned American cities, but rather the most organized, wealthiest, cleanest, and competently governed of the Caribbean cities." They will discuss why frustration has permeated the process, and how resident input is translated into the slow process of implementation. Stormwater Management for Urbanists

Satisfying increasingly rigorous stormwater management requirements in new urbanist developments remains both an art and a science. Rising density raises the challenge. Proper design and implementation of stormwater management systems can add liveliness and sustainability to open space, while poor execution can create an anti-urban feel and long-term maintenance liabilities. In addition to offering planning and design solutions, the session will delve deeply into two promising urban project technologies: green roofs and pervious pavements. National pioneers will present enduring, beautifully built projects, focusing on both inspiration and application.

Why Do Our Buildings Look Like Crap? Exploring the Role of Building Crafts in New Urbanism

Congress ABC

Time and again, critics laud new urbanist planning while panning its architecture. In a session moderated by Hank Dittmar, a group of developers and designers will explore an alternate idea: despite the perception of new urbanist architecture, the true problem is low-quality construction. Do the limitations of production doom us to a future of shabby, short-lived towns, or can we simultaneously address the decline of traditional skill and craft in the construction industry and the need to educate a new generation of urbanist architects?

Accessibility/Visitation Lunch

Congress ABC

By emphasizing mixed-use development and public transportation, urbanism offers an ideal opportunity for people with disabilities and seniors to be part of the larger community. This only works, however, if home designs permit people to visit neighbors and allow residents to remain in their own home. Presenters will display images of houses that combine basic disability access with urban design, including examples from Europe where "every new house with access" is the norm.

New Urbanism and Comprehensive Plans Lunch

Washington B

This initiative is developing a report that will highlight how the principles of New Urbanism can be incorporated into municipal or multi-jurisdictional comprehensive plans. A small working group has been identifying the commonalities of plans that have incorporated the principles of New Urbanism. Join Ellen Greenberg, AICP and others, and learn about the project and discuss next steps.

SATURDAY continuedAffordability LunchWashington A

On March 1, 2007, CNU hosted an Affordable Housing Summit to continue the conversation on CNU's specific role in the provision of quality diverse housing. Hear from conveners Neal Payton of Torti Gallas Partners and others to find out what CNU is doing, how it may impact your work, and how to get involved.

Project for Transportation Reform Lunch*Commonwealth CD*

Learn about the latest efforts to reform transportation standards. At the most recent Transportation Summit in Boulder, Colorado, a number of new initiatives emerged concerning the importance of networks, improving modeling techniques, updating standards for emergency responders, and standardizing the multiway boulevard. Learn how to get involved with these new initiatives and learn about the latest efforts on advancing the CNU/ITE street design manual. Norman Garrick of the University of Connecticut and Marcy McInelly of Urbworks will lead the discussion.

NEW URBANIST BOOK SIGNING12:30 pm – 1:30 pm | Millennium Hall

Join us for a new urbanist book signing where you can meet your favorite new urbanist writers. Several authors will be available to sign copies of their new books including Alex Marshall, Chad Emerson, Judy Wicks, Shelley Poticha, Gloria Ohland, Jim Kunstler, Jonathan Barnett, Anthony Flint, Eugenie Birch, Julie Campoli, and others. Location, Location, Location: True Affordability Measurement Gives an Old Saw New Bite

Commonwealth CD

The question of housing affordability is generally addressed through median home price analysis, yet residents commit a good portion of their income getting to and from their homes. All too often, buyers fail to consider the relationships between urban form, site selection, and transportation costs, or their collective impact on household economic well-being. Architects, transportation planners, developers, and elected officials, as well as potential buyers, should consider true housing affordability. New Urbanism and the Workplace

Washington B

For decades, workplaces have been relocating from metropolitan centers to suburbs and exurbs beyond. The Edge City phenomenon is widely recognized, but scant attention has been paid to positive models. The Charter is nearly silent on the question of employment centers, and the standard Transect definitions similarly fail to address these important parts of community and economy. This session will explore how New Urbanism can better integrate the workplace into the vision and practice.

Opening Welcome

Ray Gindroz, CNU co-founder and board member, will introduce The Right Honorable John Prescott MP, the Deputy Prime Minister of the United Kingdom. As Deputy Prime Minister, Mr. Prescott has spurred a renaissance in sustainability, brownfield redevelopment, and affordable housing in the United Kingdom and has advocated more sustainable development throughout the globe. This visit continues his productive dialogue with CNU members. The Deputy Prime Minister will discuss how sustainable cities will have a vital role to play in tackling climate change in a global economy.

John Norquist, President and CEO of CNU, will introduce Congressman Barney Frank (D-MA), Chairman of the House Committee on Financial Services. Since the departure of Senator Daniel Patrick Moynihan, no other member of either house of Congress better grasps urban policy or understands the value of urban life to the American economy and culture. Frank will share his agenda for federal policy that supports, rather than degrades, urbanism in America.

Tribute to Rich McLaughlin

CNU co-founder and leading post-Katrina Gulf Coast planner Andrés Duany will give a tribute to Rich McLaughlin, a longtime CNU member and tireless advocate for new urbanist planning principles. Rich had a deep knowledge and commitment to the principles of New Urbanism, from his early days at DPZ to his pioneering work on a neighborhood modeling system and creating a Neighborhood Design Center in Madison, Wisconsin. His passion for walkable, compact communities that embrace diversity, density, and beauty will live on in the many projects he had a hand in around the country.

Duany will then introduce and present the Athena Medal to renowned architect, author, and teacher Robert A.M. Stern.

Keynote Address by Robert A.M. Stern

When other designers turned their backs on architecture in the urban context, Stern pronounced the value of cities and urban form. His prosperous architectural practice helped reintroduce essential architectural traditions into a design culture that had lost its sense of history. Combining impeccable academic credentials with brilliant administration and first-rate knowledge of design, Stern has also supplied fearless leadership at Yale University's School of Architecture, making it perhaps the most truly open-minded architecture school in the world. He will speak on his vision of urbanism in our time.

SATURDAY *continuedSALONS AND BOXING MATCHES8:30 pm – 11:00 pm | Commonwealth ABCD

Salons: We invite you to participate in these informal gatherings where CNU members discuss their work, tackle pressing issues, or continue conversations spurred on by the Congress program, over a few drinks. Cash bar.

Boxing Matches: Salons, how civilized. This is Philadelphia! Immediately following the Salons, join us for drinks, cigars, and three matches on the card. Boxers engaging in verbal fisticuffs will include Andrés Duany, Emily “The Professor” Talen, CNU Board Chair Hank Dittmar, and other pugilistic types. Cash bar.

SUNDAY MAY 20*CONGRESS REGISTRATION8:30 am – 1:00 pm | *Loews Philadelphia Hotel, 2nd FloorCONTINENTAL BREAKFAST8:30 am – 10:00 am | *Regency Ballroom FoyerSUNDAY CLOSING PLENARY10:00 am – 12:00 pm | *Regency Ballroom ABCNew Urbanism Is Almost All Right?

CNU board member Ellen Dunham-Jones will introduce acclaimed urbanist Denise Scott Brown, recipient of the Athena Medal. CNU recognizes Brown for her extensive contribution of writings and projects, as well as for incorporating pop art, social science, and media studies into her architectural work in ways that have broadened the field of modern architecture and urbanism. Denise Scott Brown will give a lecture entitled, “New Urbanism Is Almost All Right?”

What can we learn from criticism of New Urbanism by a pioneering advocate for Main Streets over megastructures, for “the ugly and the ordinary” over “the heroic and the original?” Why does she expect New Urbanism and New Orleans to produce projects that are dull at first? Why does she get her shoes mended in Geneva, Switzerland? Moving from Petit Saconnex to NOLA, with an (almost) admiring glance at Levittown on the way, Denise Scott Brown will present her take on various issues facing new urbanists. She will also put forward her sometimes surprising beliefs and preferences, illustrating them with examples from her work.

The 2030 Challenge

Following Denise Scott Brown’s lecture, CNU board member Doug Farr will introduce Edward Mazria, architect and founder of Architecture 2030, to explain “the 2030 Architecture Challenge.” Scott Bernstein, President of the Center for Neighborhood Technology, will offer a response.

SPEAKERS:

Denise Scott Brown, Principal, Venturi Scott Brown Associates

Ellen Dunham-Jones, Director of the Architecture Program, Georgia Institute of Technology

Edward Mazria, Founder, Architecture 2030

Doug Farr, President and Founding Principal, Farr Associates Architecture & Urban Design

Scott Bernstein, President, Center for Neighborhood Technology
